

PRIVACY: It is true: if "they" want to, they only need to look at our bank statements to see who is subscribed. We consider Hack-Tic to be an utterly harmless little magazine, but there's a chance that local, regional, national, and in the future, possibly even European authorities may disagree. If you have a position in society you don't want to lose, you can also enclose cash or a check and your address in an envelope and send it to our P.O. box; then we'll know enough. Your Hack-Tic will always be sent in a neutral envelope. (Your landlady might think you're buying porn by mail order). Hack-Tic is also available at good bookstores (perhaps recognisable by the surveillance team out front).

DISCLAIMER: Information in Hack-Tic serves only an educational purpose. Use of this information could be illegal/a threat to national security/naughty. The editors disclaim all responsibility for the use by readers of the information contained in Hack-Tic.

REPRINTING: Permitted! Newspapers, magazines, broadcasting foundations, political parties, washing machine repairmen, etc., etc., may reprint articles from Hack-Tic without prior permission from the editors (but with attribution, of course). The above disclaimer, however, remains in effect. Reprinting of the entire Hack-Tic is...
